

WRAP UP AND ADJOURN

BARBARA BALLARD: Well, we're at our -- getting at our time, and you know, we're about to board the bus and take a tour of Eli Lilly, but certainly I would like to ask all of our presenters that are still present to stand please and let's just recognize what a fine job they have done. All of the presenters, please stand. I think we have other presenters, yes. All of them. Great. Thank you so much, and I do want to thank Representative Beverly Earle for doing a fine job this morning as moderator. Thank you.

You know, and looking over the list when I was identifying different people who were officers, and I'm sitting right next to Representative Miller, she is our chaplain. So I wanted to make sure we recognized her today as well. Well, what we know Black America's Dialogue on Health: Disease Prevention through Transformative Living. I hope with everything we've heard today, and the conversations we've had and all the many questions asked that we have been transformed in some way, that we realize that life is complicated as it is, that stress is what it is; the economy is what it is, and we have to live every day. We determine what quality of life we live. And I think we're doing a pretty good job or we wouldn't all be here today.

So I hope you take back with you some ideas that you will then put your own spin on them, but most of all it's our constituents that we serve, that we care about. And for those of you on the Internet, we thank you very much for joining us today and we hope we provided some additional knowledge for you. And for that person out there who was looking for someone to inspire them today, I hope we provided that for you. And for someone who was looking to see where can I find fresh produce, we gave you ideas. And for that community that wanted to do more around agriculture and making that a part of life, that we did that for you today. That was the whole purpose of our conference. And we thank you so very much on the Internet for joining us. And I certainly would like to thank all of the legislators who were here today. And please, could we give a round of applause to our staff? Ajenai Clemmons worked extremely hard today putting all this together for us. There is Sarah Munshi over there. And Lakimba is back there. And Nancy is there as well.

So when we're putting it all together, it went smoothly, yes, but it's because there was lots and lots of hours put in for time. We'd like to thank the Indiana Caucus. And you know by accident we're here, but I am so glad because we have an opportunity to do our work in a surrounding that we're very familiar with. It's not -- it's a different capitol, but we know what they do in this room. And I thank them for providing this opportunity and their staff to help us out today. Is there anything else for the good of the order? If not, I would say again, thank you so very much and I hope that you were inspired as well. Yes.
